
About the Authors

Erik van Ommeren – <http://www.linkedin.com/in/erikvanommeren>

Erik van Ommeren is responsible for VINT – the International Research Institute of Sogeti in the USA. He is an analyst, public speaker and co-author of the books SOA for Profit: A Manager's Guide to Success with Service Oriented Architecture and Open for Business: Open Source Inspired Innovation.

Sander Duivestein – <http://www.linkedin.com/in/sanderduivestein>

Sander Duivestein is a senior analyst at VINT, the International Research Institute of Sogeti. He is also an internet entrepreneur. Prior, Sander was a software architect at Capgemini. He is co-author of the book Me the Media: Rise of the Conversation Society.

John deVadoss – <http://www.linkedin.com/in/jdevados>

John deVadoss leads the Patterns & Practices team at Microsoft. His responsibilities include platform and architecture strategy for the Microsoft application platform and developer tools. He has over 15 years of experience in the software industry and has been at Microsoft for over 10 years.

Clemens Reijnen – <http://www.linkedin.com/in/clemensreijnen>

Clemens Reijnen is a software architect at Sogeti and was awarded Microsoft Most Valuable Professional (MVP) by Microsoft. Clemens has a broad background in software development and architecture. He also runs a technical blog.

Erik Gunvaldson – <http://www.linkedin.com/pub/0/103/558>

Erik Gunvaldson is a senior program manager for Microsoft Online Services. He manages the partner, customer, and community programs of Microsoft Online. He has over 20 years of experience in IT.