CAPGEMINI AND SOGETI TAKE PART IN THE INTERNATIONAL DEFENCE WEEK – 2010 EUROSATORY – IN PARIS FROM 14 TO 18 JUNE 2010

Capgemini and Sogeti, a wholly owned subsidiary of Capgemini Group, have been partners of defence and security players for nearly 30 years.

The 34th international defence week will take place at the Exposition Parc of Villepinte (Paris Nord) from 14th to 18th June. Eurosatory, the biggest exhibition for land and air-land defence and homeland defence, is a strategic and economic meeting place which allows all political-military decision-makers and industry players to obtain information among others on last technological trends. Capgemini and Sogeti will expose their knowledge as specialists in information systems (IS) and engineering for defence and security.

Capgemini, a worldwide leader on systems integration market, offers its customers solutions enabling value creation and cost structure optimization: urbanization, SOA, organization and IT scheme. The IT services company accompanies its clients throughout IS security issues, simulation activities and scientific informatics. For more than 30 years, Capgemini has been providing to defence players its knowledge and civilian world references transposable to military programs. At the exhibition, its teams will present their offerings in integration or maintenance in condition of operational information systems (OIS), logistics IS or critical systems.

Sogeti, a leading provider of professional information technology and engineering services, offers a wide range of services regarding technological expertise of information systems and Research & Development with its specialized subsidiary, Sogeti High Tech. Sogeti assists industrials, systems and equipments integrators from the defence sector in projects concerning engineering, technological innovation in information and communication systems, systems for supervision, security and systems simulation, development of embedded real time systems, guidance and navigation systems and solutions for software and physical testing.

Capgemini and Sogeti teams will be at their booth (Hall 6, stand E140) to welcome visitors in order to share their last realisations and technological innovations for defence players.
