Challenges faced by the metal cutting industry...

on the m

To be competitive on the market our customers must increase their level of automation

Automation •

Skills gap

More advanced machines and programming strategies, difficult to source competence

Cost and Quality Control

Increased customization, smaller batches and shorter lead times requires cost traceability and produce the "right" quality for our customers to be competitive

Reduce waste

Reduced time, resources, consumables and to get it right from the first component makes our customers competitive on a global market
